COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

Chaco Culture National Historical Park preserves one of America's most significant and fascinating cultural and historic areas. Chaco Canyon was a major center of ancestral Puebloan culture between AD 850 and 1250. It was a hub of ceremony, trade, and administration for the prehistoric Four Corners area - unlike anything before or since.

The first sighting of these ruins in modern history was that of an expedition led by Lieutenant James H. Simpson whose guide led them to the ruins of Pueblo Pintado. His enthusiastic report stirred little interest back home in Washington D. C. It was not until 1877 that a second exploration of the area that William Henry Jackson visited and photographed the ruins.

Soon other visitors arrived at Chaco Canyon, notably the Mindeleff brothers of the American Bureau of Ethnology, and the Hyde Exploration Expedition, with Richard Wetherill, the explorer of Mesa Verde, and a student, George Pepper, a student from the Peabody Museum of Harvard University. Wetherill and Pepper did the first excavations at Pueblo Bonito, and Wetherill claimed a homestead in 1901 that included, among others, Pueblo Bonito and Chetro Ketl. By this time the self-trained Wetherill had become anathema to scholars trained in institutions, and eastern academics began to rally around an attempt to stop what they felt was wanton pot hunting and looting of antiquities in the American West. Land Office Agent S. J. Holsinger was assigned to investigate the activities of the Hyde expedition, and in addition to mapping the area, noting other significant structures, irrigation ditches and ancient roadways, he developed a personal animosity toward Wetherill. Holsinger's research contributed towards passage of the American Antiquities Act in 1906, and in 1907 Theodore Roosevelt proclaimed Chaco Canyon National Monument. Wetherill then relinquished his claim.

In 1921 Neil Judd, Curator of Archeology at the United States National Museum, in conjunction with the National Geographic Society, began the first federally authorized excavations on Chaco Canyon, focusing on Pueblo Bonito. Using technically sophisticated methods such as stratigraphy and dendochronology (the study of the age of tree rings), they focused less on collecting objects than answering questions about the meaning and purpose of the ruins.

In 1929, Edward Hewett led a team from the Museum of New Mexico, the School of American Research, and the University of New Mexico. This excavation led to further refinements such as those of Florence Hawley Ellis in dendochronology and Gordon Vivian, an archeologist from Arizona State Museum, working with the National Park Service. By the mid 1930s researchers had learned much about the culture of Chaco Canyon, but it was becoming apparent that the approach using multi-agency teams had its drawbacks, mainly inter-agency squabbling about who could do what and by 1947 it was decided that one agency, the National Park Service, would be the head. Gordon Vivian was named head of archeology, and excavations of additional structures were expanded.

The Chaco Center was established in 1971 by the National Park Service in conjunction with the University of New Mexico, first under Robert Lister and then James Judge as Directors. Its goal was to achieve a comprehensive view of the archeological sites, irrigation systems, road, petroglyphs, etc. New techniques such as remote sensing, photogrammetry, and thermography have aided in these studies of the outlier road system and the extensive network of canals and irrigation ditches.

Despite the extensive work done in Chaco Canyon many fundamental questions remain to be answered, for example: the essential purpose of the Chaco network, and why it was abandoned. Research work will continue, but some answers may never be found.

Title: K1815 - RECORDS OF INTERPRETIVE ACTIVITIES, SERVICES: Fajada Butte Log

Summary Notes:

When Fajada Butte was open to visitors, a log book was kept on the summit. We have a few badly faded pages from the 1950-60s, and 2 spiral-bound notebooks from 1979-1982. Fajada Butte was closed to the general public in the late 1980s.

---LOGS FROM 1951-1969: LOOSE PAGES FROM 2- 3 LOG BOOKS ON TOP OF FAJADA BUTTE. THE LARGER PAGES ARE FROM THE 1951-61 ERA, THE SMALLER FROM THE MID 1960S. ENTRIES ARE IN PENCIL, WHICH HAS FADED. NOTABLE ENTRIES: GWINNET VIVIAN, 1951, 1952, 1953. THE PRIMARY AGENTS OF DETERIORATIONS ARE BURNING AND FOXING. MOST OF THE WRITING IS BARELY LEGIBLE, SOME PAGES ARE FRAGMENTARY. BURNING APPEARS TO BE FROM A SINGLE EVENT.

---LOGS FROM 1979-1993: SPIRAL BOUND NOTEBOOKS THAT SERVED AS VISITOR REGISTERS ON TOP OF FAJADA BUTTE. DATES FROM JUNE 1979 TO SEPTEMBER 1982. ENTRIES IN ENGLISH, SPANISH, AND CHINESE. INCLUDES NAMES, COMMENTS AND SKETCHES. EXPOSED TO ELEMENTS, SO BOOKS ARE WATER-STAINED AND SOME OF THE
