

Baltimore Oriole

(Icterus galbula)

- You usually hear a Baltimore Oriole before you see them because they feed high in the trees. Listen closely for their chatter calls.
- They really enjoy searching leaves and branches for insects, flowers, and fruit
- Baltimore Orioles can be found in open woodlands, forest edges, river banks, and small groves of trees
- Size: Small
- Color: Adult males are bright orange and black. Females are a duller orange and black

