HISTORY

Established in 1916 by a congressional act, Hawaii National Park was the 15th National Park in the United States. Originally called Hawaii National Park and composed of the volcanoes Kilauea and Mauna Loa on Hawaii and the volcano Haleakala on Maui, in 1960, the park split into two parks, Haleakala National Park (HALE) and Hawaii Volcanoes National Park (HAVO). In its early years the Park was comprised of the volcanoes Kīlauea and Mauna Loa and additional private lands from within and around park boundaries. The park added additional lands in subsequent decades that included state and private lands in the Puna District and ranch lands in the southernmost area of the Kau District, and as of 2010, it encompassed 323,431 acres. The park harbors distinct plants and animals and has seven diverse ecological zones: seacoast, lowland, mid-elevation woodland, rain forest, upland forest, subalpine, and alpine. Mauna Loa, the earth's largest volcano at 13,677 feet (4,169 meters), last erupted in 1984. Kilauea began erupting in 1983 and continued until 2018. The International Biosphere Reserve selected Hawaii Volcanoes National Park (HAVO) for these diverse features in 1980 and UNESCO World Heritage Site chose Hawai'i Volcanoes National Park (HAVO) in 1987. The park's administration staff is charged with overseeing all the divisions of the park, including protection, maintenance, interpretation, cultural resources, natural resources, and education. It also oversees park lands and acquisitions as well as concessioners who operate as partners within the park and private business entities such as tour operators.
