Introduction

Longfellow House- Washington's Headquarters National Historic Site is a unit of the National Park Service that preserves and interprets the historic structures, grounds and collections associated with the life and work of the nation's first professional poet who engaged the major social, political and cultural questions of his day through poetry that engaged the mind and pleased the senses.

Longfellow's poems continue to resonate – inviting new generations to think about the power of words and the marvel of human ingenuity. The park offers several curriculum- based programs for student groups in the Greater Boston area, and is pleased to now offer educators a downloadable teacher packet with materials suitable for classroom use.

This packet, Longfellow's Life & Legacy, includes biographical information on Henry Wadsworth Longfellow for students of all ages. In addition the packet includes an extensive bibliography with suggested readings for teachers and students, and a variety of primary source materials – historic photographs, poems, and quotes – suitable for classroom use. All photographs and documents in this packet are courtesy of the National Park Service, Longfellow House- Washington's Headquarters National Historic Site.
