DESCRIPTION

Diary and photo albums of William Chester Myers document his time as a concessioner employee for the Wylie Camping Company at the Canyon Camp in Yellowstone National Park in 1913. The diary is a photocopy of a small notebook which contains brief entries describing activities of the day. The two photograph albums provide extensive documentation of the life of a concessioner employee, including views of fellow employees, the camp, the park, and various social activities. The albums are well annotated, and the images document a lot of behind-the-scenes views.
